

Geocaching Course: “Discovery of the heritage of the FOUX from PEYROULES”

How to play:

Geocaching is an outdoor recreational activity in which participants use a Global Positioning System (GPS).

Geocaching makes it possible to visit places thanks to North and East Coordinates.

The Google Maps application is one of the tools that allow visitors to advance on a course by integrating the provided North and East coordinates. And discover the course more often by solving riddles.

The visitor will be able to observe the various heritages which he will progressively discover.

The course often ends by the search and the discovery of a small waterproof and resistant container, including a register of visits named “logbook” and sometimes one or more “treasures”.....

Entering North and East Coordinates in Google Maps.

With the Google Maps Application to start your course, you will enter a latitude (North) and a longitude (East) in degrees (°) and minutes ('), in the menu bar “ enter your search”.

The first coordinates will always be given to you; some riddles will help you to find the following coordinates of the next steps.

For example to enter : N 43 48.972 E006 40.788, you must be careful to respect the spaces, the points, the comma, or (if we expressly indicate)

43space48point972commaspace06space40point788

Then start the search. Click on “itinerary” then “start” to start your course.

The practice of geocaching is under the responsibility and common sens of everyone and hiking in nature needs to have the necessary equipment and the usual protections.

Discretion is a basic principle of geocaching practice.
